"Or worse," said Leicester. "Either a burglar or one of the thieves who play the ghost trick."

The captain smiled and eyed Leicester keenly.

"You think then," he said, "that the ghost is a trick of some sort, or a 'hoax'?"

"Or villain," said Leicester. "I am sure there is some trickery at the bottom of it, and I cannot conceive a man playing in for so big a stake as this."

However, this is not the time for ventilation of the subject. I am going to make the mistake, and I apologise.

The captain bowed.

CHAPTER XVIII

Leicester had spoken the truth when he had said, in answer to the captain's inquiry, that he had been out to see the ghost.

But he had another object.

Since the morning when he had come upon the captain seated in the rumormonger's shop, he could not rid himself of the suspicion that the captain was implicated in the savouring of his secret.

Music and the Drama

In Wolf Hopper's final performance in Hamilton in "The Pirates of Penzance," took exceptionally well. The audience that comfortably filled the Grand on Saturday evening.

True the famed artist did not appear until the second of the two acts, but she was well under way and she did not remain for any particular length of time on the stage, still his ability found ample opportunity for display and his characteristic aroused enthusiastic even applause from the audience.

It was the Pirates of Penzance, the "Pirates of Penzance" differs from the "Pirates of Penzance" by Sullivan opera. It is light and pleasant, and has sufficient of serious theme to make it appeal to the serious. The story involves pirates, pirates, and pretty girls, also a policeman. The pirates, in the person of Wolf Hopper as Edward the Pirate, put in an appearance in the middle of the first act, during fifteen or twenty minutes alone in the stage, providing the audience with a delightful hour that causes one to almost double in two. There were a number of other characters, chiefly that of the pirate chief, taken well by Herbert Waterhouse, Frederick, the pirate apprentice, by Arthur Adair; the major, by Arthur Adair; the general's daughter, filled by Alice Brady, and Ruth, the pirate's daughter, by Alice Brady. The chorus was far above the average, and included some artists of the highest calibre.

In the afternoon on Saturday the company presented a first-class production of "The Peer and the Peri."

TWILIGHT RECITAL.

The Twilight recital in Centenary Methodist Church on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, was enjoyed by a large number and the splendid programme was presented by the vocal quartet, made up by Mrs. H. Maxwell Morrow, who will be remembered. The numbers contributed were:

- (a) Solo, from the C. Major Symphony.
- (b) Serenade.
- (c) (a) Woina Whittier; (b) The King—Mrs. H. Maxwell Morrow.
- (d) Monette, from Fantasia, Op. 38.
- (e) Moment Musical, Op. 34, No. 1.

Songs—(a) Am Meer (by the Sea) (b) Hark, Hark, the Lark—Mrs. H. Maxwell Morrow.

WORM IN HIS EAR

Caused Death of Boy in Pennsylvania.

Pennsburg, Pa., Feb. 8.—A tiny worm in his ear caused the death of Monroe Ward, the nine-year-old son of Mrs. Rosa Ward, of Spanghero, near here.

Three years ago, while the boy was sleeping under a tree near the house, the worm crawled into his ear.

The mother, seeing the boy was "crying" in his bed, a physician was called and the boy was kept upon a pillow of earth for four weeks, in an effort to coax the worm out of the ear, but without avail.

Total blindness soon followed, caused, it is believed, by the worm feeding on the optic nerve. An x-ray photograph revealed the worm deep in the back of the head. The worm was finally removed by means of alcohol injections, but the boy grew steadily worse, and death followed.

The Confessions of a Wife

A Talk-Fest With Dick

CHAPTER LXXIII.

I was rather glad when Dick's father, mother and Mollie left for home. It seemed to me that he and I had been in a turmoil of some kind ever since we got into our new room.

Indeed, I thought Dick looked rather depressed.

When he came in last night after dinner and sunk into his easy chair I hurried to get his slippers and the old alpaca coat he loves to wear at night when we were alone.

"I hope no one will come in," remarked as I saw, how tired and worried Dick was.

"Is there anything on your mind, Dick?"

He looked at me for a moment without speaking and then said: "Yes, Margie, I have come to a place in my business life where I must make a decision quickly, and it is bothering me more than a little."

I did not dare say, "Tell me what it is," for I had already found out that Dick hated to be questioned about business, but I was very sure that he was in a bad way.

"I don't know I mentioned that big school-book deal when I came home," he said after a few minutes.

"Well, it looks as though there was a lot of grating for some one in that deal," he said, looking at me.

"I don't know if it is worth it or not, but if our firm wanted to sell those books we must turn out and place a great deal of work."

That Booze License Makes Much Trouble

Favor of a liquor license there in the east, and yet City Clerk Kent assures the same temperance people that as early as last November he sent to Mr. Sturdy a certificate as to the signatures on this very petition.

Mr. Kent this morning confirmed this latter statement. He stated on a recent visit last, over three months ago, he sent Mr. Sturdy a certificate to the effect that the petition had been signed by a majority of the electors of the polling sub-division.

The temperance people assert that this and again they have asked the inspector if he had received this petition and had always been told that he knew nothing about it. They also assert that they had Mr. Sturdy's name but had always been told that he knew nothing about it. BRITISH HOUSE MEETS TUESDAY

And Exciting Session Is Believed To Be Likely.
UNIONIST BLOCK

Thought To Be Contemplated
On Home Rule.

London, Feb. 8.—After the longest vacation that members have enjoyed since the Liberal party came into power eight years ago, Parliament reassembles on Tuesday for a session that promises to be full of hard work and excitement.

It is expected that during the debate on the reply to the King's message, the Unionist opposition will be found by the Liberals for bringing up the Irish question, although the home rule bill is already before Parliament, and is therefore excluded from this preliminary debate on the Government's programme. A motion might be made, however, regretting that the negotiations for settling the "Ester" situation had failed, and this would mean a test vote.

OPPOSITION PROGRAMME.
Every Unionist member has been required to be present on the opening day, and no pairs with opponents are being granted, so it appears certain that the Opposition plans to carry out its foreseen programme of trying to compel the Government to resign. The Government side is alert, however, and is not likely to be caught napping on any matters brought up.

The Welsh disestablishment bill, the Admiralty estimates, reform in the constitution of the House of Lords, and temperance and education reform are measures on which bitter and protracted debates are expected.

There is still much interest as to how the House of Lords will receive the Home Rule and Welsh disestablishment bills. The Liberal's content that under the Parliament act no matter what the Lords do to the bill, they come law on receiving the signature of the King. There are some Unionist members, however, who believe that the act distinctly says they shall become law on the Lords rejecting them for the third time. If the upper Chamber simply refuses to consider them, they cannot be rejected, and therefore cannot become law. The House of Lords, however, would require a lot of urging to take that line, considering as they would that the people have already rejected the Parliament act, and any attempt to evade its provisions would be tantamount to a smooth evasion of its two chief measures.

TARIFF REFORM.
The modification of the policy of tariff reform, endorsed by Bonar Law, by which "food taxes" are dropped, has not met with entire success in the Unionist party. Many farmers are asking why they should be deprived of that protection which they were told tariff reform would give them, while the manufacturers receive the benefit of the tariff reform. Some districts have been inundated with protests, and it is probable that some tariff reform will make an amendment that will bring the question up. Then Austen Chamberlain and other tariff reformers would come out in support of the whole thing, and would be the main support of the Bonar Law, Walter Long and other Unionist leaders. In the words of the tariff reform supporters, have thrown over the party's chief platform for fear of the effect of "food taxes" on the workingmen.

40 WERE KILLED

Mexican Train Dashed Into Flaming Tunnel.

Was Not Captured by Bandits,
As Reported.

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 8.—That the 40 passengers on the Mexico-Crawford train dashed into a tunnel and were themselves burned to death in the tunnel and not made prisoners by Mexican bandits was established yesterday afternoon in the belief of the officials of the road. The officials of the road received advice to the effect that the bandits did not capture the train at all, as at first reported, but that it dashed into the burning tunnel without warning and was wrecked and burned, presumably with its load of human freight.

This was partially confirmed yesterday afternoon when Superintendent C. B. Clark, of the Mexican division of the road, accompanied by F. C. Herr and Dr. O. C. West, penetrated a short way into the burning tunnel from the north and found the dead bodies of thirteen men John Fernandez inside the tunnel, horribly burned.

Yesterday morning early, at the south of the tunnel, three men met a Mexican, who told them that he had been north of the tunnel when the train dashed into it on Wednesday, and that it had not been up, as reported.

The strength of this statement and the later finding of the body of the rear brakeman, who the entire train crew and passengers had been destroyed, and asked that physicians be sent of once to Pearson.

The first report was that the bandits had taken the passenger and officials from the train and were holding them prisoners, and that the train was sent wild into the tunnel.

The nine Americans who perished on the train were: William Williams, superintendent of the Chihuahua division; M. J. Gilman of Buffalo, N.Y.; superintendent of the Chihuahua division; E. J. McArthur, engineer; E. E. Webster, conductor; Edward Morris, roadmaster; Thomas Kelly, conductor; and James Brown.

FORECASTS OF REDISTRIBUTION

Something of the Coming
Tory Gerrymander.

WORST IN QUEBEC

Matter Will Likely Come Up Tuesday.

OTTAWA, Feb. 8.—The bill redistributing and readjusting the parliamentary representation will be proceeded with this week, probably on Tuesday. The measure will be explained by the Prime Minister, who will propose its reference to a small select committee containing representatives of both parties. The committee will be composed of members of the country will be represented on the committee.

The bill has been printed, and in its present form is a very simple affair. It is the introduction of a formal bill, which as a result of the last census each province is to be entitled, and provides that the boundaries of the different electoral divisions will be as set forth in the schedule or appendix. It is to define and prepare the latter that the special committee is to be appointed.

It has been the custom heretofore for this committee to meet in private, and that procedure will likely be followed again. As the introduction of a formal bill, there will likely be little discussion on the measure until in its complete form it comes back to the House from committee.

DETAILS NOT SETTLED.

While there are numerous plans and suggestions of redistribution in the different parts of the country, and some of them are tentatively decided upon, no general detailed system has as yet been evolved, and will not be until the committee meets, and determines certain fundamental principles upon which the whole measure will be based.

Fortino and York county will likely have ten members, following to some extent the provincial divisions, and in Quebec where the bill will probably receive the most criticism.

The most probable arrangement in Saskatchewan calls for the division of the province by the South Saskatchewan and the Qu'Appelle River, giving nine members to the south and seven to the north. That part of the constituency of Moose Jaw south of the South Saskatchewan will require three members. A seat comprising Maple Creek, Gull Lake and part of Pinto Creek, the ranching country, another including Swift Current, Morse, and parts of Pinto Creek, Thunder Creek and Moose Jaw county, and a third comprising Moose Jaw city, Melfort and Weyburn, is a probable division. It is likely that Regina City and Lumsden will form an other constituency. The old district of Assiniboia, with parts of the former constituencies of Regina and Qu'Appelle, will likely get two members, and the district of Qu'Appelle will remain practically as it is with the exception of a portion along the southern boundary which is to be added to the new southern seat.

CHANGES IN THE NORTH.

In the north, the constituencies of Selkirk, Mackenzie and Humboldt will remain, although smaller in area, and a new seat will be added in the western part of this part of the province. Battleford, south of North Saskatchewan, will be much smaller in area. Lloydminster, North Battleford, Red River, part of Melfort and Assiniboia will likely be another seat, and Prince Albert will likely include Selkirk, Melfort, Cumberland, Kinistone, Prince Albert City and part of Shellbrook.

This seems to be the most logical division, and the redistribution will in all probability follow the lines indicated, although the boundaries of the several constituencies will not be known definitely until the bill is passed by the committee.

In Manitoba, Selkirk and Dauphin will each be divided, and Winnipeg will receive two additional members. There will probably be a member for the new territory added in the north, including Churchill and Virden.

Ontario will lose four members, and Toronto will lose two.

Two additional, Russell, Stormont and Brockville will be wiped out. Newmarket, Leamington, Galt, Middlesex and Huron will each lose a member. The Fallow River and Niagara in the north will each receive an additional member.

CANADA'S TRADE

Flour Exports For Year
Over $20,000,000.

Great Increase of Business
With U. S.

OTTAWA, Feb. 8.—An abstract of the trade of Canada for the twelve months ending with November last shows that Canadian products were able to compete in foreign markets either against a duty or in free trade with Britain to the extent of an export trade valued at $20,136,000, an increase of approximately $1,000,000 over the preceding twelve months.

Of the total exports of flour, the United Kingdom took $11,713,000, the value of the Canadian flour exports to the United States was $8,300,000.

The exports of flour for the twelve months ending with November last totalled $12,136,000, a decrease of about $2,000,000 over the twelve months ending with November last. The exports of flour to the United States were $8,300,000, an increase of $1,000,000 over the twelve months ending with November last.

As bearing on the Liberal policy of reciprocity, the duties on imports from the United States, and the duties on exports to the United States, it may be noted that during the twelve months the imports included breadstuffs to the value of $11,250,000, of which $7,947,000 came from the United States; vegetables to the value of $5,000,000, of which $2,480,000 came from the United States; and fruits to the value of $17,000,000, of which $12,964,000 came from the United States.

INCREASE OF "TRUCK AND TRADE"

Exports of Canadian produce to Great Britain during the twelve months totalled $20,136,000, an increase of $4,300,000 over the twelve months ending with November last. Exports of Canadian produce to the United States totalled $18,713,000, an increase of $4,300,000 over the twelve months ending with November last.
